

GOV'T REFUSES TO GET EXCITED OVER RED UPRISINGS

Will Leave Handling of Demonstrations Entirely to The Local Authorities

NO UNDUE ALARM FELT

Agents Will Keep in Touch With Situation, But That Is All

By George R. Holmes
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Mar. 5.—The Federal Government refused today to become excited over the "Red uprisings" which Communistic elements have planned tomorrow in scores of American cities as a part of a world-wide demonstration against unemployment and the existing industrial situation.

The policy of the Government is to leave the handling of the demonstrations to local authorities in every case. If there is "rough stuff," club swinging and head breaking, apparently it is to be done by municipal police and not by Federal agents.

The Department of Justice, which in other years has displayed almost feverish activity against Communistic agitators, professes to have only a tolerant, almost academic, interest in tomorrow's demonstrations.

In the course of their regular work, the Department's agents keep in touch with Communists' activities, but no widespread raids are planned for tomorrow, nor is there any indication of undue alarm over what the demonstrations may develop. The Federal slogan appeared to be, "leave it to the local authorities."

Daughter of Former Resident Drowns Herself in Ocean

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 5.—A mother's intuition resulted shortly before last midnight in the identification of the body of Miss Viola M. Bateman, 41, of 1601 Lehigh avenue, who is believed to have drowned herself at Atlantic City.

When the mother, Mrs. Lillian Bateman, read in newspapers of the discovery of the body she felt that it must be that of her daughter. This belief was partially confirmed when she heard that a wrist watch bearing the initials "V. M. B." was found on the body.

Mrs. Bateman, unable to stand the strain of viewing the remains, asked Dr. O. D. Glic, of 1621 West Lehigh avenue, to make the trip to Atlantic City and view the body. He identified Miss Bateman last night.

According to Mrs. Bateman, her daughter had brooded for two days over her employer's criticisms and then had slipped away from her home Sunday night. She is believed to have thrown herself into the ocean. The body was found by a policeman shortly after dawn near Heinz's Pier.

Since the death of her father six years ago Miss Bateman and her mother, Mrs. Lillian Bateman, have lived alone.

"Viola had been worried for two days over trouble in the office," Mrs. Bateman said. "On Sunday night I went to her room and kissed her before I went to church, when I came home she was gone."

At first I supposed she had gone riding with friends, but as time passed I became alarmed. When she did not come home I thought perhaps she had spent the night with friends, but I was really alarmed."

Miss Bateman was employed by a food-products concern as a book-keeper.

Miss Bateman is the daughter of a former resident of Bristol whose maiden name was Clymer. Miss Clymer resided on Buckley street.

SERVICE IS THE COMPELLING MOTIVE IN ALL AMERICAN LEGION ENDEAVORS

NEW CASTLE, Mar. 5.—O. L. Bodenhauer, national commander of The American Legion, appealed to the people of America last night to study the Legion's plea that the fundamental principle of "equal service for all and special privilege or profit to none" be enacted into the basic law of the land. He also appealed to the ex-service men of America; who personally experienced the loss of time and lack of adequate facilities in the World War, because of the delay in having such a law then, to strengthen the Legion's ranks at this time for the purpose of leading support, through their membership, to the Legion program in congress where a resolution to create a commission to study universal service is now pending.

The national commander spoke at an American Legion banquet held in his honor. The address follows: "Service is the compelling motive in all American Legion endeavors; service to the disabled and to the dependents of veterans; service to our communities, to our states and to our nation. "The American Legion's effort in

The end of an epic in heroism is clearly defined above as it is pictured how the wrecked Eielson plane appeared to the first searchers. It was almost covered with winter snows and parts of the plane were scattered all around. The nose can be seen in the foreground, while the broken wing sticks out of a snow bank.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS WIN BOTH CONTESTS

Alumni Defeated in Basketball Contests Staged in Local "Gym"

INTERESTING CONTESTS

Although the Alumni had three former high school stars who graduated in February on their team they failed to win over the high school girls, last night, in a basketball contest. This marked the last home game to be played by the boys and girls.

In the first half it seemed as if the Alumni would keep up with the high school lasses but they could not stand the pace for soon Mary Pine's proteges were leading in points. This game was not like the game played at the beginning of the season.

The Alumni boasted of four girls who had previously "made the varsity squad." They are Fisher, Strumfels, Randolph and Giagnacova. In spite of this fact Bristol gained their victory, but not without fighting a hard game.

The Alumni defeated the high school boys' five in the first meet by a very close margin, but the locals got their revenge last night in an interesting tournament played at the high school "gym." The Alumni lost to the score of 37-30.

Good passing and fine shooting were noteworthy features of the game. Green, Tulio and Pico were outstanding for Bristol. Watt came to the front by making four difficult shots.

In the first half Bristol had the advantage over the visitors by the score of 23-11, but it was not long before they started to pile them in during the second half.

CLERGYMAN'S WIFE HAS MODEL DAIRY BARN ERECTED ON DUBLIN PIKE; HOPES HER HUSBAND WILL SOME DAY TURN THOUGHTS TOWARD FARMING

Dr. and Mrs. John G. Wilson, Philadelphia, Complete Bucks County's Finest Dairy Barn — Farmers Entertained When Place is Opened for Inspection

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 5.—Because it is a hobby with her to be able to come out into the country and enjoy the outdoors during the summer months, a thrifty Philadelphia woman, the wife of a well known Methodist Episcopal clergyman, has just completed Bucks county's finest dairy barn on their farm several miles north of Doylestown on the Dublin pike.

Yesterday several hundred farmers from every section of Bucks county were entertained at the farm when the barn was opened for inspection as the "model barn" of all of Bucks county. It is located on the 164-acre farm owned by Dr. John G. Wilson, pastor of the Wharton Memorial Church, West Philadelphia, and Mrs. Wilson, his wife. The superintendent of the farm is Charles E. Insweiler, who came to Bucks county from Delaware, where he managed a large farm.

"My husband takes little interest in farming and I myself never lived on a farm, but I have learned a lot about farming in the last few years," Mrs. Wilson said yesterday.

"Less than a year ago the barn on this farm burned down," she continued. "It was a fine barn too, and my husband said to me, 'Well, I guess you have enough of it now, do you not?' I told him no; that I was going to rebuild with the finest barn possible and that I intended to fill it up with cattle that will make us some money. It is my hope that some day he will tire of preaching and will take a liking to the farm. If that is the case we will have a real farm in operation."

The barn, modern in every detail, with every known appliance of any use to modern dairy farming installed in the structure, cost close to $23,000. There is nothing like it in the county. In a few weeks Mrs. Wilson will make a trip to the western part of the state to see about the purchase of twenty head of cattle. It is quite likely that Ayrshire cattle will be purchased although this is not definitely decided.

"I know that I cannot afford to purchase all registered cattle but I intend to get good cattle that will make money," she said.

The future bovine occupants of the new dairy barn will be greeted with sanitary stanchions, automatic milking machinery, a ventilating system throughout the barn operated by power that keeps the barn cool, changes the air and drives out the unpleasant odors, a high manger, an electric refrigeration plant for cooling the milk, overhead tracks that carry automatic feeding devices and a barn that in color does not cause sore eyes to gaze upon.

TREVOSE PASTOR VISITS BENSLEM HIGH SCHOOL

Rev. Alexander B. Davidson Gives Interesting Talk Before Students

A FINE PROGRAMME

BENSLEM TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL, Cornwells Heights, Mar. 5.—Rev. Alexander B. Davidson, pastor of the Trevoze M. E. Church, paid a recent visit to the Benslem Township high school here, and gave a very interesting talk to the student body on "Geography" or "See America First."

The minister's talk was enjoyed immensely because of the "personality" of his speech. He took the students on an imaginary trip through the United States, telling of the many incidents of travel. The speaker was introduced by Horace States, president of the student body.

The devotionals of the day were in charge of Mr. Hamm, one of the instructors. Singing of "America" and the flag salute were included in the program. Much business was transacted.

The basketball game played last Friday afternoon added another victory to the fast-growing list of undefeated games of the Benslem girls' team.

The locals met the Doylestown High School team on the floor here and won the game with a score of 45-23.

The line-ups for both teams at the start of the game were as follows:

This game was as fast and furious as any game played by Benslem this year. It was made more pleasant for both teams because of the good fellowship and sportsmanship that lasted throughout the game.

YOUTHFUL GANG ROBBED ELEVEN PLACES RECENTLY

Police Accuse Boys of Stealing Money, Auto Accessories, Merchandise

HELD FOR COURT TRIAL

Quartette Taken to Doylestown for Session of The Juvenile Court

Police yesterday cleared up 11 petty robberies committed here during the past few months and in connection therewith took into custody four youths ranging in age from 13 to 15 years. All four have been committed to Doylestown there to wait for a session of Juvenile Court.

Despite the youthfulness of the quartette none of the group appeared to be perplexed over their situation and they told conflicting stories to the officers and justice of the peace. One of the group had a gun.

All four were urged to tell the truth of the robberies they had committed and cautioned that if they did not it would only make the situation worse. This did not trouble them in the least. As they remained in the detention room most of the day, one amused himself by singing the "Prisoner's Song" and other selections.

Those arrested: John Carr, 14, 569 Otter street. John Capella, 14, Elm street. Thomas DeMarkus, Railroad avenue. Sabatoni Giano.

The boys said that they had agreed that two of them would leave today for New York and two for Philadelphia. Their arrest prevented their departure.

The places which the youths admit entering and committing petty thefts therein are as follows:

Harry Spicer, store, Radcliffe street, March 4th; Joe Jenco, Jefferson avenue and Elm street, store, February 20th; Palermo's pool room, Mill street, March 4th; Jefferson avenue school, February 20th; Collier's garage, February 23rd; Goheen Coar, garage, 702 Pine street, March 3rd; Howard Edwards, garage, 565 Bath street, March 3rd; C. H. Bunting Motor Express office, March 4th; Canal Company, office, March 3rd and January 15th; shack at foot of Pond street, three weeks ago.

The loot which the youngsters are said to have taken includes money, auto batteries, auto radiator, cigars, cigarettes, ice cream and numerous other things.

In the Jefferson avenue public school a money saving stamp machine was smashed, costing $165. The cash was taken from the machine and totaled about $6.

In tracing some of the loot which the boys are accused of having taken the police also found in a junk dealer's place a lot of plumbing, brass and copper, which apparently had been stolen from unoccupied houses.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Paone Honored On Birthdays

TULLYTOWN, Mar. 5.—On Saturday evening a number of relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Paone, of Lovett avenue, gathered at the Paone home in honor of their birthday anniversaries. This affair was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Paone. The party was given by the sons and daughters of the couple. Mrs. Paone celebrated her 58th birthday, while Mr. Paone celebrated his 55th.

The home was very attractively decorated, the color scheme of white and pink being carried out. The evening was spent in a most enjoyable way. Many games were played. Following the social time, tasty refreshments were served, and at a late hour the guests departed for their homes.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paone, of Seaside Heights; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Paone and children, Mr. and Mrs. Tamburella, Joseph Cattani, Miss Flavia Cattani, Mr. and Mrs. Calabrese and family, Mr. and Mrs. Cosley Paone, of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Paone and daughter, Gloria, of Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Napoli and children, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Paone, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Concheine.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Veit Celebrate Anniversary

The 20th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Veit, Madison avenue, West Bristol, was celebrated Saturday evening when a number of guests from Philadelphia and this section were entertained. The affair also marked the anniversary of the birth of John Morrow.

A sumptuous banquet was served at the Veit home and the tables were resplendent in their decorations of bouquets.

A satin boudoir set was presented by the ones celebrating their wedding anniversary, this being the gift of the Ladies' Aid of the Newport Road Community Chapel. To Mr. Morrow a sweater was given.

Singing, dancing and a general social time kept the group interested until a late hour.

MAN GLADLY SURRENDERS

Women have but recently come into the right of participating in public meetings and they have seized upon it with all the enthusiasm of beginners. They are today the great organizers, the makers of constitutions and by-laws, for garden clubs, church auxiliaries, sewing societies and other important bodies.

As is the way with people who meddle with parliamentary law, they not infrequently become involved in its meshes. What more natural that they should appeal to their husbands to set them straight? Was it not man who framed Magna Charta, the Bill of Rights, the American Constitution and dozens of other instruments of government?

So it has come about that many a weary husband returns home to be asked the proper procedure for tabling a motion, for wording a resolution, for holding elections, and so forth. It would be distressing to disillusion his wife. He endeavors valiantly to maintain the fiction that every man knows all there is to be known about parliamentary law, when the best he himself has ever done was to second a motion at a Sunday school class meeting. After once or twice having this trying experience of this nature a husband is more than ever convinced that woman's place is in the home, where the constitution is unwritten, a humane disposition the rule and procedure anything but parliamentary.

Long ago the male of the species had his fling at constitutions and by-laws, but for a number of years he has been finding the sporting page, radio tinkering and golf more intriguing. It is one traditionally masculine province man has gladly bequeathed to woman.

DECLINE OF KINGS

Because he will some day become king, Prince Olaf, heir to the throne of Norway, is denied his wish to go "before the mast."

His royal parents and those charged with grooming him for the crown consider the rough life of a sailor to be out of harmony with the popular idea of what a modern king should do.

In a monarchical form of government appearances must be kept up at all costs. The power of princes lies largely in keeping up the illusion (now quite generally exploded) of universal superiority.

When the Prince of Wales was given his degree at Oxford without having taken the examinations required of the other students the exception was explained by one of his professors thuswise:

"You couldn't examine a man who will be your king, you know. Besides, someone might be found who was better than His Highness, and that would be embarrassing."

In ancient times when the subdued and superstitious masses really believed in the "divine right of kings" and when kings had to fight their way to the throne and, once they arrived there, fight contenders away, a sailor's life was thought a proper training for a future monarch and an aspirant for kingship had to excel all others or forfeit the crown.

"I feel that Bucks county is naturally a dairy county because it is near the big markets. There should be more cattle showing a profit in Bucks county. If you do not belong to a dairy testing association, you certainly should join at once. Dairying is simply a matter of business and good bookkeeping. You should not keep a cow that does not show a profit and the only way you can tell whether there is a profit is to join the cow testing association in your district."

"I believe the dairy industry is more substantial today than any other branch of agriculture. There is no fluctuation in the price of milk. The way to make money in the dairy industry is to feed economically, to eliminate the non-paying cattle and to find a good market for your milk."

John Held Wields Pen For Old Gold Cigarettes

Courier readers who fancy themselves in the roles of Lotharios, handsome ne'er-do-wells and old-fashioned heroes of romance, will do well to study the helps and hints contained in Mr. John Held, Jr.'s series of Old Gold advertisements now appearing in the Courier.

The inimitable Held object lessons in successful courtship are among the most humorous things ever seen in print. That they should appear as sales persuaders for Old Golds subtracts nothing whatever from their funniness.

Long may John Held continue to portray his melodramatic villains and touch-me-not maidens of long ago. And may his heroes and heroines never find a cough in a carload!

Service Compelling Motive
In All Legion Endeavors

about the Reed-Wainwright Resolution, which simply asks that a commission be appointed to study this principle and if it is found to be correct, then to recommend to congress a definite plan of action.

"This is a more fundamental principle of national defense than are the current questions of naval strength or a larger army, or a larger air force."

Regarding the naval conference in London, Bodenhamer said:

"The Legion's stand on the naval conference is the same as it has been since the inception of our organization. The results sought by the United States and Great Britain in this conference—that of equal strength, with safe reductions and with the guarantee of permanent peace—are in keeping with the strongest desires of The American Legion. It is our fondest hope that parity will be brought about by reduction, rather than by construction."

"The American delegation to that conference is well balanced. Its members three of whom are Legionnaires, are qualified to represent the United States of America. They know war and its futility. Likewise, they know the demands of national security. They deserve, therefore, that confidence and encouragement as requested by the President of the United States in his statement to the American people made on the eve of the departure of our delegation. Just what agreement can be reached by this conference will be such as to meet with the hearty approval of the American people."

"We, as Americans, desire no advantage in the matter of armament. We, however, are just as firm in our conviction that no other nation should, by armament or otherwise, secure an advantage over the United States. We of the Legion know the futility of war, but we likewise know the disastrous results of unpreparedness. We must, therefore, continue to insist that the safety of America demands the adoption of a safe and sane policy relative to national defense, in all of its different phases. As we march toward the goal of world peace and reduction of armament, it is not the part of wisdom for the United States and all of the other nations to advance in even rank, step by step, as we discard and reduce the weapon of war."

The national commander spoke of the Legion's success in having one of the hospital construction bills on the Legion program passed before Christmas. This bill provides for the construction of additional hospitals at a cost of $15,950,000 and is less than half of what the Legion is urging to be passed at this session.

"Our interest in the welfare of our disabled, and of their dependents, is most commendable, and is certainly prompted by the spirit of keeping faith with those who have made the supreme sacrifice," he said. "Our interest in the promotion of a program for a better American citizenship is certainly prompted by our desire to keep faith with those who have already proved their good citizenship by deeds rather than by words. In the spirit of such unselfishness, therefore, I appeal to the members of The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, and through them, to the American public, that our entire efforts shall be thrown to the task of securing, through congress, the proper care of our disabled, and to guard the safety of America, through the operation of a proper national defense program, of which the Universal draft principle shall play no small part."

Regarding other phases of the current program of the Legion, the national commander said:

"I could have no greater ambition, and I could perform no greater service, than to cause you, as the red-blooded men and women of this great state, to pause for a moment, and study some phases of the work The American Legion is trying to do, and is doing, today."

"The American Legion is composed of nearly 800,000 citizens who have proved their loyalty to the United States in the greatest emergency which has ever confronted our Government. These are the same men who fought for their country eleven years ago; the same men in whom this nation had confidence, during the time of that war; the same men who, today, are just plain American citizens, with a pride in their country, and with a loyalty to its institutions, its people and to the principles upon which it is founded. The Legion is composed of the same blood and flesh, the same manhood and womanhood which gave character and leadership to the American armed forces during the time of conflict. America had confidence in them, then. It must have confidence in them, now. America cheered them, then, as they sought their objectives, during the time of battle. Surely, those same people will continue to cheer them, now, as they fight the battles of our disabled comrades, and as they promote the principles of good citizenship and good government."
